

Starting Fall 2022:

1. Melisa Akan's NSF funded Fellowship proposal. Cannot provide link due to possible privacy constraints.
2. Eyewitness Identification and the of Distractors for Lineups Selection C. A. Elizabeth Luus and Gary L. Wells (1991)
3. A multidimensional scaling analysis of own- and cross-race face spaces Megan H. Papesh, Stephen D. Goldinger (2010)
4. The Selection of Distractors for Eyewitness Lineups Gary L. Wells (October 1993)
5. Selecting Foils for Identification Lineups: Matching Suspects or Descriptions? Jennifer L. Tunnicliff 1 and Steven E. Clark (2000)
6. Eye-tracking the own-race bias in face recognition: Revealing the perceptual and socio-cognitive mechanisms Peter J. Hills, J. Michael Pake (2013)
7. Dodson, C. S., & Dobolyi, D. G. (2016). Confidence and eyewitness identifications: The cross-race effect, decision time and accuracy. Applied Cognitive Psychology, 30(1), 113-125.
8. Megreya, A. M., White, D., & Burton, A. M. (2011). The Other-Race Effect does not Rely on Memory: Evidence from a Matching Task. Quarterly Journal of Experimental Psychology
9. Own-Race Bias in Lineup Construction John C. Brigham* and David J. Ready* (1985)